Columns: 5

Rows: 15

Has search feature and you can go to page 2, 3, 4 etc. However you define what page 2 is in the bottom corner by setting rows and columns.

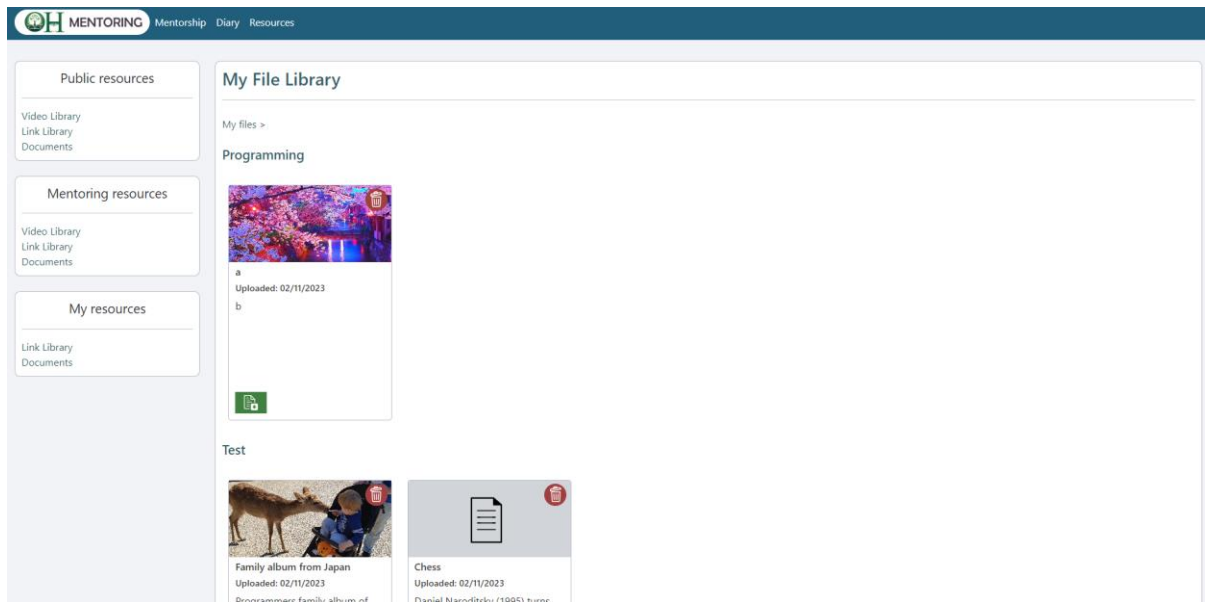

If you are on a small screen for example...

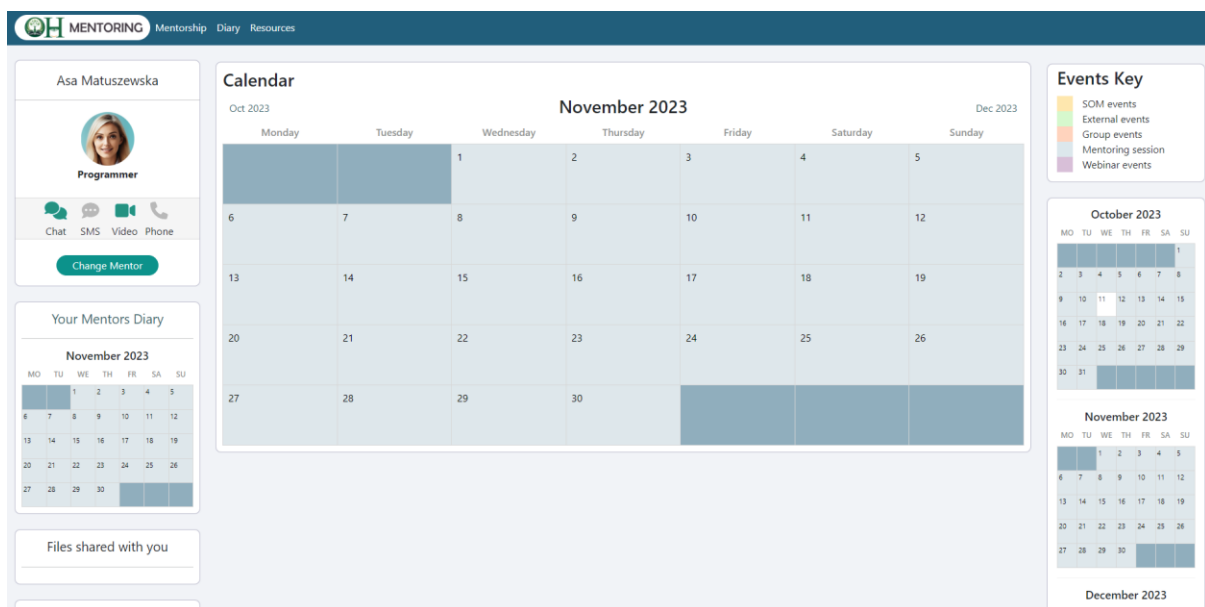

Then you can make the video frames bigger by having fewer columns of videos, or fit very many on a big screen. You get to pick the size.

Documents

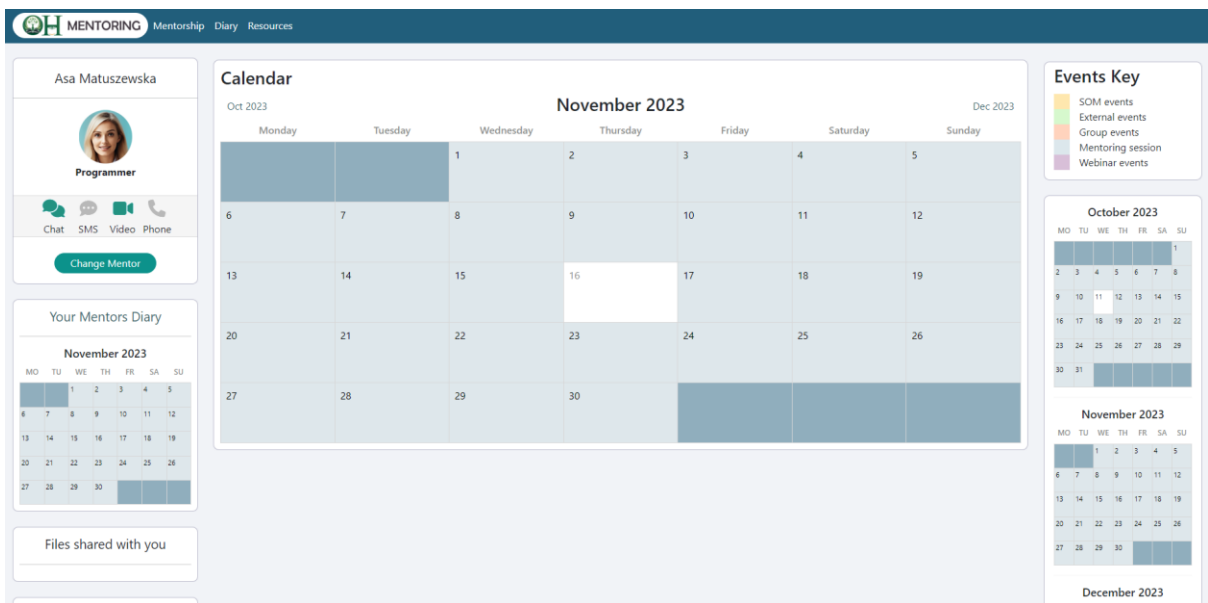

Are coded to display image previews or different icons to represent the type of files that have been uploaded.

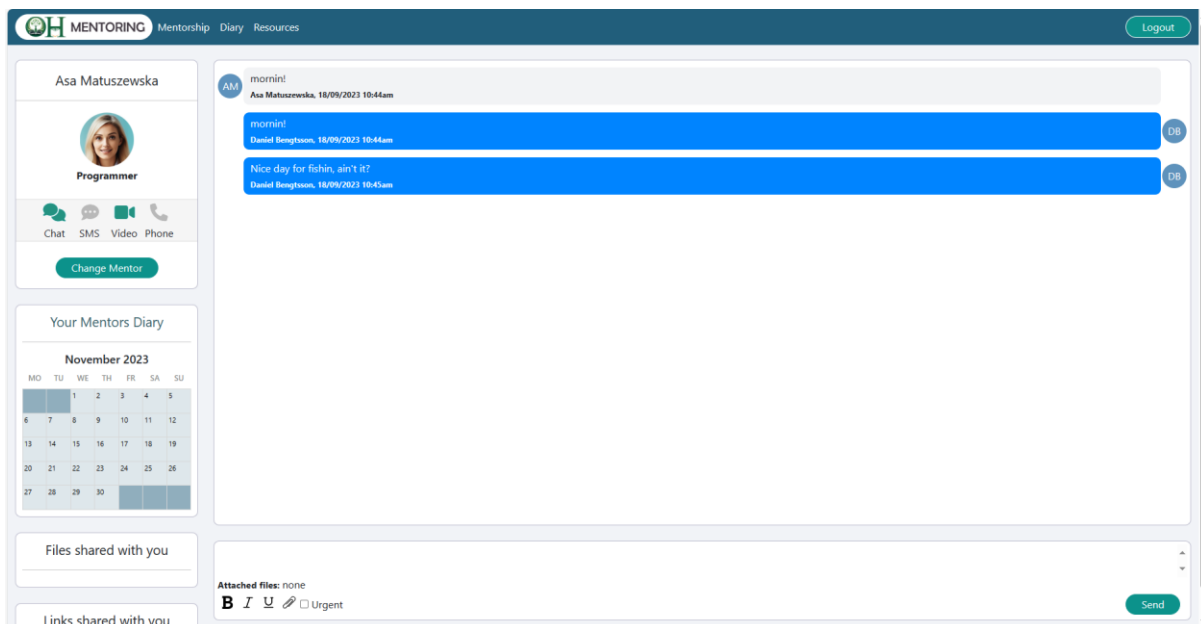

Diary

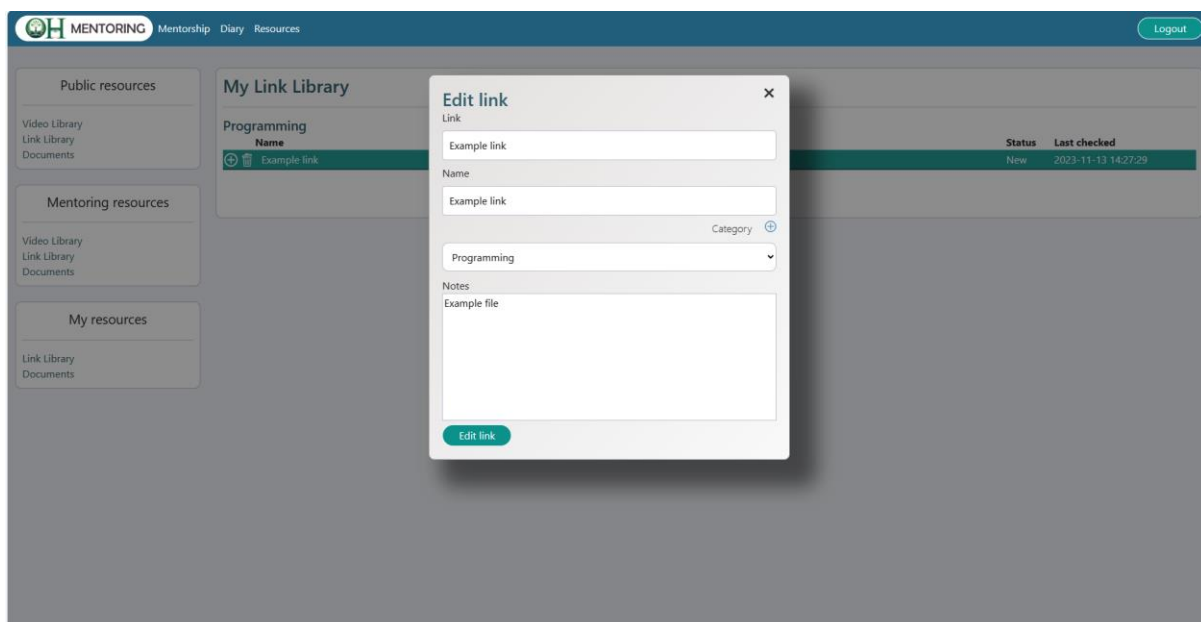

Displays your diaries and allows you to unblock yourself:

Main screen

Chat with your mentor, you can send and receive files and links which will be automatically added to your files under a new category (received links/files), which you can then edit and place in another category should you so desire.

You can also change mentor by clicking the button:

PRESENTATION:

With CSS3 flex layout model you can very easily create the equal height columns or  elements that are aligned side by side. Just apply the display property with the value flex on the container element and the flex property with the value 1 on child elements.

Let's try out the following example to understand how it basically works:

Picking a mentor requires you to sign an agreement:

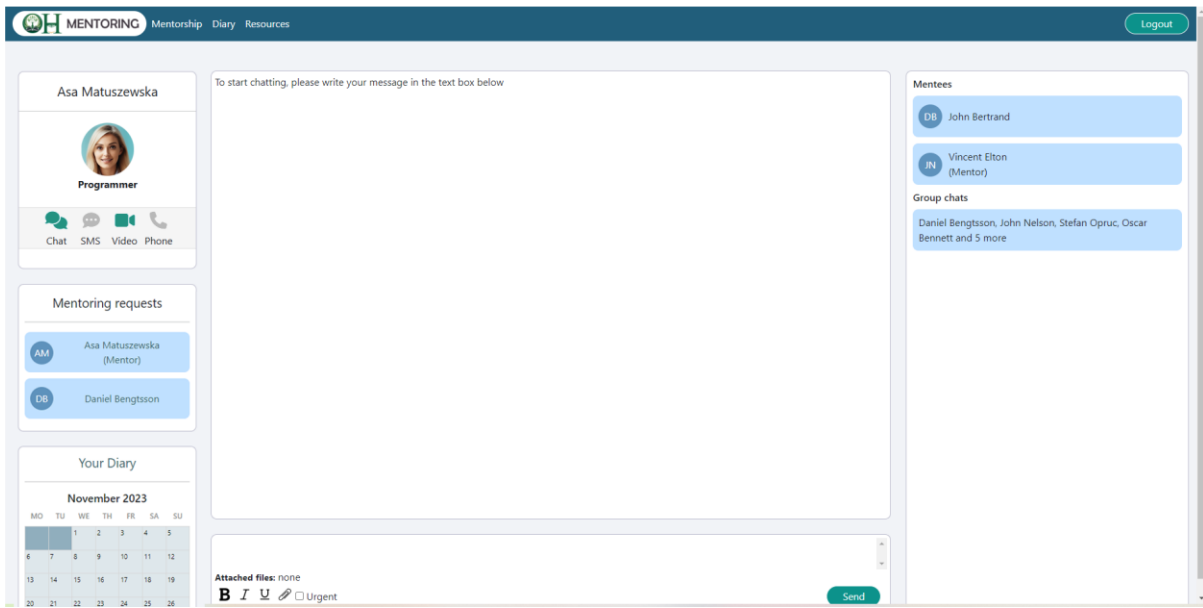

Mentor

Main screen is a little bit different, main difference being that instead of showing mentor information you have mentee requests.

Clicking a chat will load mentee information, similar to that of the mentor information along with their diary.

Mentee requests will come in via email. To view all requests simply click on their name in the upper left corner of the chat screen:
