After two weeks of activities at the Daytona International Speedway, The Great American Race, the 2017 Daytona 500, has finally arrived.

Fox and Fox Sports 1 will be covering the event throughout the day and is available for streaming online at Fox Sports Go.

Defending Daytona 500 champion Denny Hamlin is looking to become the first back-to-back Daytona 500 champion since Sterling Marlin in 1994-95. And for the second straight year, 21-year-old Chase Elliott is on the pole at The Great American Race.

Coverage from Daytona starts at 11 a.m. ET with NASCAR Raceday on Fox Sports 1. John Roberts and Shannon Spake co-host the two-hour show.

Television coverage shifts to Fox with Fox NASCAR Sunday at 1 p.m. , hosted by Chris Myers.

Race coverage begins at 2 p.m. with play-by-play man Mike Joy — This will be the 42nd Daytona 500 he's called! — and analysts Jeff Gordon and Darrell Waltrip. The green flag set to drop at 2:31 p.m.
